From Our Executive Director

Dear Friends,

As I write this final annual report message as Executive Director, I am struck by the magnitude of what we have built together. For more than forty years, Cypress Hills Local Development Corporation has been the anchor, advocate, and engine of a vision deeply rooted in East New York, one where families have access to opportunity, where young people are nurtured and celebrated, where housing is a foundation for stability rather than displacement, and where community power fuels lasting change.

This past year was one of profound growth and transition. It was a year that required resilience, creativity, and determination from everyone connected to CHLDC. And yet, in every corner of the organization, I witnessed something extraordinary: a community that continues not only to endure, but to imagine, to build, and to lead.

In total, 10,414 residents walked through our doors or engaged with our programs this year. That number represents far more than services delivered, it represents stories of transformation. It represents a family that kept their home. A teenager discovering their voice. A young adult earning their first credential. A senior reconnecting with neighbors. A mother learning English to advocate for her children. A college student taking one more brave step toward a degree.

Our Career & Education programs prepared 1,378 residents to enter or re-enter the workforce at a time when stability is more essential than ever. I met participants who completed training and found jobs that changed their family's trajectory. Some were stepping into a career for the first time. Others were rebuilding after setbacks. Many were parents determined to show their children that new beginnings are always possible.

Our college success and persistence work continued to open doors for thousands of young people. I visited our Student Success Centers this year and watched high school juniors map out their futures with counselors who know them deeply and believe in them fully. I saw college students balancing classes, work, and life, with our staff standing behind them, ensuring they had the guidance, MetroCards, emergency supports, and mentorship necessary to keep going.

From Our Executive Director

Our housing and community development teams supported 813 residents navigating rising costs, uncertainty, and the complexities of New York City's housing landscape. They helped homeowners preserve generational wealth, helped tenants fight for safe housing conditions, and provided access to energy improvements that make homes healthier and more sustainable.

Our Youth & Family Services division reached thousands of children across 12 schools and multiple community spaces. I watched young people celebrate cultural heritage, practice leadership, learn teamwork, and find joy. In a world that often underestimates or dismisses them, CHLDC gives them space to be powerful, curious, and seen.

And our community organizers, residents, youth, tenants, leaders continued to stand together in the face of gentrification pressures, inequitable transit access, school underinvestment, and displacement. Their voices continue to shape the future of Broadway Junction and the broader East New York community.

This upcoming year marks my retirement, but it does not mark an ending. The roots we planted decades ago have grown into a resilient, far-reaching network of community strength. As I pass the leadership of CHLDC to Michael G. Johnson, I do so with great confidence in his commitment to serving East New York's residents and small businesses, organizing for justice and rebuilding our neighborhood. The next chapter of CHLDC will be led by our majority-resident Board of Directors and Michael, alongside new voices, new leadership, and a new generation of East New Yorkers ready to carry our mission forward.

Thank you, for trusting me, for pushing us, for partnering with us, and for believing in what we could accomplish together. It has been the honor of my lifetime to serve this organization and community.

With deep gratitude,

Michelle Neugebauer

The Merger

Cypress Hills Local Development Corporation and United Community Centers

For decades, Cypress Hills Local Development Corporation (CHLDC) and United Community Centers (UCC) have worked together to improve the quality of life for residents of Cypress Hills and East New York. Guided by a shared commitment to community empowerment, both organizations have built a legacy of creating opportunities through education, housing, workforce development, youth programming, and neighborhood revitalization.

This year marks an important milestone as CHLDC and UCC officially unite under one organizational structure. The merger reflects a natural evolution of a longstanding partnership and reinforces our shared mission to serve the community more effectively.

By combining our resources, expertise, and operations, we are strengthening our ability to respond to the changing needs of our neighborhoods while increasing organizational efficiency and long-term sustainability. This unified approach allows us to better coordinate services, expand opportunities for residents, and maximize the impact of every investment made in our work.

Although our organizational structure has changed, our commitment to the community remains unwavering. The merger honors the rich histories of both CHLDC and UCC while creating a stronger foundation for the future. Together, we are better positioned to advance equitable growth, empower families, and continue building vibrant, resilient neighborhoods for generations to come.

STRONGER TOGETHER

Career & Education

This year, CHLDC's Career & Education division became a launching pad for hundreds of East New Yorkers who were ready to grow new skills, enter new fields, or restart careers interrupted by economic hardship. The division's impact extended far beyond training hours and job placements, it restored dignity, sparked ambition, and provided the tools people needed to reclaim their trajectories.

The hallways of our workforce programs were often filled before classes even began. Parents came straight from dropping their children off at school; older adults arrived eager to prove that learning has no age limit; young people, once unsure of their futures, returned day after day determined to build something lasting. Staff greeted participants by name, celebrating small wins, a passed exam, a call-back interview, a completed resume, knowing that each milestone moved residents closer to long-term stability.

This year, participants trained in:

- Construction trades, gaining OSHA certifications, hands-on carpentry training, and skills in a field with strong union pathways
- Commercial driving, with participants learning vehicle operation, safety compliance, and route management, opening access to higher-wage CDL careers
- Technology, where students explored computer support, software basics, hardware troubleshooting, and employer-demand soft skills.
- Culinary arts, transforming their passion for food into marketable skills and business potential
- Medical support roles, including EKG and phlebotomy, where residents prepared for careers that offer stability and growth

Careers Grow Here: Building Economic Power Through Opportunity

Participants didn't just learn tasks, they built confidence, practiced professionalism, and envisioned futures they once believed were out of reach. This year:

196

earned credentials that strengthened their competitiveness

159 residents secured new employment, many stepping into their first stable job in years an hour was the average wage reached, a meaningful shift in household income.

$21.41

76%

remained employed for at least three months, a critical benchmark for economic stability.

1,021

young people, participated in the Summer Youth Employment Program this year where they get 6 weeks of professional exposure to local businesses.

from the 1,021 Summer Youth Employment Program participants were able to get similar experiences throughout the school year in the Work, Learn and Grow program.

Career & Education also launched a new track of SYEP whereby residents of the Cypress Hills and Pink Houses (NYCHA) can bypass the lottery and get direct admission to the Work, Learn and Grow program.

Career & Education

These numbers represent a workforce growing stronger roots and a community equipped to compete in an ever-changing economy.

CHLDC's entrepreneurship ecosystem also thrived:

- The Community Kitchen Incubator supported 31 food entrepreneurs, from bakers to caterers to specialty product creators
- Some are selling at markets, others launching catering businesses, and several are preparing to open brick-and-mortar locations
- 101 local merchants received support navigating leases, digital marketing, licensing, and financial decision-making
- We launched the Cypress Hills Fulton BID through which local business leaders have been able to become their own non-profit with resources to improve the commercial corridor. Daily sidewalk cleaning, holiday lights, safety improvements, and technical assistance are just a few of their initial projects.
- The East New York Merchants Association has been launched on New Lots, Livonia, and Sutter to help businesses organize and thrive in an area of high vacancy and disinvestment.

EAST NEW YORK'S BUSINESS COMMUNITY IS NOT ONLY GROWING, IT IS ROOTING ITSELF FIRMLY IN THE LOCAL ECONOMY.

Community Development

Healthy Roots. Healthy Community. Strengthening Homes, Sustainability & Stability.

CHLDC's Community Development division is the backbone of neighborhood preservation, improving living conditions, expanding sustainability, and ensuring East New York remains a place where long-standing residents can stay rooted.

This year, families navigated complicated systems just to maintain stability: rising utility costs, repair needs, unaffordable housing lotteries, confusing benefits processes, and environmental challenges. Our staff met residents with patience, expertise, and a determination to secure real solutions.

Energy Efficiency & Home Preservation

With heat waves, rising energy costs, and aging housing stock, energy retrofits became more critical than ever. CHLDC helped homeowners assess needs, secure upgrades, and improve the health and safety of their homes.

In Fiscal Year 2025:

- 10 units received energy efficiency retrofits
- Dozens more completed assessments and prepared for future upgrades
- Residents received guidance on electrification pathways and long-term sustainability

THESE UPGRADES DIDN'T JUST LOWER BILLS, THEY CREATED HEALTHIER, SAFER, MORE LIVABLE HOMES.

Community Development

With many East New York families facing food insecurity, CHLDC expanded its food distribution and benefits access work:

- 2,808 residents accessed fresh, culturally relevant foods
- Staff helped families navigate SNAP and other nutrition supports
- Community events brought resources directly into neighborhoods

Nutrition is a foundational root of wellbeing and our programs ensured families could access the food they needed to thrive.

Our team also helped 383 renters navigate the affordable housing landscape:

- Applying for Housing Connect units
- Understanding income requirements
- Preparing documentation
- Navigating processes that often shut out or overwhelm low-income applicants

THROUGH PATIENCE AND PERSISTENCE, RENTERS GAINED CLARITY, CONFIDENCE, AND OPPORTUNITIES TO SECURE STABLE, AFFORDABLE HOMES.

CHLDC Development and Housing manages over 800 units of housing and has an additional 105 units currently under development. Through both preservation and new construction, these homes are deeply affordable and serve our community.

Community Development

Healthy Roots. Healthy Community. Strengthening Homes, Sustainability & Stability.

Participants didn't just learn tasks, they built confidence, practiced professionalism, and envisioned futures they once believed were out of reach. This year:

1282

residents supported through Public Benefits counseling and enrollment services.

625 households assisted in accessing essential nutrition benefits through SNAP enrollment.

NYC

981 households connected to critical NYC Benefits and resources

116 children served through Child Care applications

In December 2025, CHLDC finalized construction financing to deliver 69 new housing units and establish a new home for Cypress Hills Childcare Corporation.

College Success

Strong Futures Start Here: Guiding Students From Access to Achievement

In FY25, CHLDC's College Success division remained one of the most transformational forces in East New York, shaping educational journeys, expanding possibilities, and holding space for young people to imagine futures beyond the boundaries of their neighborhoods.

Students stepped into our Student Success Centers carrying hopes, fears, questions, and untapped potential. Many were the first in their families to apply to college. Others struggled with housing instability, financial uncertainty, or navigating school systems that weren't designed with them in mind. What they all found at CHLDC was something more powerful than services, they found belief.

Once students entered college, our counselors stayed close:

- Hosting campus meet-ups at York, LaGuardia, BMCC, Brooklyn College, Medgar Evers, and others
- Providing MetroCards so transportation costs wouldn't derail academic progress
- Offering emergency support when crises threatened to interrupt schooling
- Guiding course selections, major decisions, and transfer options
- Creating peer networks that kept students connected and encouraged
- Helping students find summer work that aligned with their schedules and goals

These supports help students weather the emotional, financial, and academic storms that often cause first-generation students to drop out.

College success is more than enrollment. It is:

- Families celebrating the first diploma in generations
- Students choosing careers that shift economic outcomes
- Young people returning to East New York as teachers, nurses, engineers, organizers, and leaders

This is how strong futures take root, one student at a time.

THERE IS NOTHING QUITE LIKE THE MOMENT
A STUDENT REALIZES THEY BELONG IN SPACES ONCE RESERVED FOR OTHERS...

Across the Student Success Centers, Students:

Consulted with counselors who guided them through admissions, transfers, and award letters

Visited colleges where they could envision themselves living and learning

Drafted essays that revealed courage and brilliance

Completed FAFSA forms despite national delays and systemwide breakdowns

Participated in events where their accomplishments were celebrated with cheers, t-shirts, and music

Community Organizing

Rooted. Resilient. East New York. Community Power Shaping Community Futures.

This year, East New Yorkers mobilized to protect their homes, fight displacement, advocate for youth-centered policies, and push for large-scale systems change. Community members didn't wait for solutions, we built them.

Tenant associations strengthened their organizing, taking collective action to:

- Demand repairs and accountability
- Push back against harassment and negligence
- Secure safety upgrades
- Stop illegal rent increases
- Hold landlords, management companies, and city agencies responsible

Through this work, tenants regained power over their living conditions and over their futures.

Our organizers worked with homeowners facing:

- Predatory home buyers
- Scams and pressure tactics
- Confusing legal documents
- Attempts to strip generational wealth

Furthermore, our organizers in the East New York Coalition for Community Advancement:

- Led the citywide coalition for the End Toxic Home Flipping Act
- Secured additional legislative co-sponsors for the End Toxic Home Flipping Act.
- Successfully convinced Economic Development Corporation to release RFPs for the IBZ which include requirements for green jobs and a food hub, demands the community has been fighting for since the 2016 rezoning
- Called for more affordable, family-sized apartments for the Herkimer-Williams rezoning along with more investments from the city for East New York
- Testified in person and in writing on the Herkimer-Williams rezoning before Community Board 5, the City Planning Commission, and City Council.

WORKSHOPS, OUTREACH CAMPAIGNS, AND ADVOCACY EFFORTS HELPED HOMEOWNERS PROTECT THEIR MOST VALUABLE ASSET; THEIR HOME.

Community Organizing

Rooted. Resilient. East New York. Community Power Shaping Community Futures.

Future of Tomorrow (FOT) youth were extraordinary this year. Key accomplishments include:

- Testified at hearings with unwavering conviction
- Called for mental health supports and trauma-informed school practices
- Challenged punitive discipline systems
- Organized peers and built leadership pipelines
- Participated in citywide coalitions amplifying student voice

Their advocacy is the future of East New York, bold, informed, and rooted in lived experience.

A COMMUNITY $TANDING TOGETHER

With 74% of members staying active throughout the year, the organizing base is stronger than ever. Their work ensures that East New York's future isn't decided for them, it is shaped by them.

Cypress Hills East New York Community Center

A Home for Belonging: Culture, Wellness & Connection Rooted in Community

The Community Center was a heartbeat of East New York in 2025, a place where laughter echoed through hallways, music spilled from classrooms, and neighbors of all ages found connection and possibility.

On any given day, you might find:

- Teenagers in boxing classes releasing stress in healthy ways
- Adults learning Bachata steps and sharing stories
- Seniors practicing English with pride and determination
- Children walking into music class holding instruments bigger than their arms
- Neighbors forming friendships over shared meals, games, and wellness activities

Our ESL classes were especially powerful this year:

- Dozens of newcomers gained confidence navigating daily life
- Participants practiced speaking in safe, supportive environments
- Several secured jobs or advanced at work due to improved language skills

Housing Counseling

Stability Begins at Home: Protecting Generational Roots & Preventing Displacement

In FY25, CHLDC's Housing Counseling division worked tirelessly to keep families rooted in their homes amid rising costs, predatory pressures, and citywide instability.

Financial literacy programs reached 165 residents, empowering them to:

- Build or repair credit
- Create sustainable budgets
- Reduce debts
- Grow savings
- Plan for the long term

These financial roots strengthen families and protect homes for years to come.

United Community Centers

Transformation happens when learning takes root in everyday spaces and a community begins to recognize its own power.

In FY25, Cypress Hills Local Development Corporation welcomed the staff, programs, and legacy of United Community Centers (UCC) through a legal merger, expanding our impact and strengthening services for East New York residents. By retaining UCC's dedicated staff and programming, CHLDC is building on decades of community leadership while increasing opportunities for children, youth, and families.

EARLY LEARNING CENTER

The Early Learning Center provides high-quality, culturally responsive early childhood education that helps children build a strong foundation for lifelong learning. Through a safe, nurturing environment, the program supports children's social, emotional, and academic development while giving families access to reliable, high-quality care.

United Community Centers

Transformation happens when learning takes root in everyday spaces and a community begins to recognize its own power.

PROTECTING THE EAST

Protecting the East empowers young people to lead conversations around sexual health, healthy relationships, and reproductive justice. Through peer leadership, community outreach, and educational programming, the initiative expands access to essential resources while fostering informed, healthy, and empowered communities.

EAST NEW YORK FARMS

East New York Farms advances food justice by connecting residents to locally grown food, urban agriculture, and environmental stewardship. Through youth leadership, community gardening, and neighborhood-based food initiatives, the program strengthens food security, promotes sustainability, and cultivates a healthier, more resilient East New York.

Youth and Family Services

Strong Roots. Strong Futures.: Where Young People Grow, Lead & Thrive

In FY25, CHLDC served thousands of young people in high quality, comprehensive afterschool and summer camp programming, college success and persistence services, our Beacon school-based community centers and our Middle School Student Success Center. In our afterschool programs we engaged young people in nutritious meals, field trips, homework help, evidence-based literacy building programming, arts and cultural activities, recreation and sports and community service.

The Middle School Student Success Center provided students with:

- SHSAT preparation
- High school application guidance
- Parent workshops
- Career awareness
- College exposure trips

CHLDC ENSURED THAT THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN ACROSS EAST NEW YORK EXPERIENCED JOY, CURIOSITY, AND GROWTH IN ENVIRONMENTS ROOTED IN SAFETY AND LOVE.

Youth and Family Services
